Mac'sween of Edinburgh Ltd recalls various products because of inadequate procedures to control Clostridium botulinum

Last updated: 14 July 2017

Mac'sween of Edinburgh Ltd has recalled a number of its products, including products manufactured for Lidl and Marks & Spencer, as a precautionary measure, because of concerns over the company's procedures in place to control Clostridium botulinum.

No other Macsween of Edinburgh Ltd, Lidl and Marks & Spencer products are known to be affected

Risk

Manufacturing controls that could potentially affect the safety of the products could not be demonstrated satisfactorily by the manufacturer.

The issue relates to controlling factors to prevent the growth and toxin production of Clostridium botulinum. Botulinum toxin may cause a serious form of food poisoning called botulism and can be fatal. A recall from customers is being carried out as a precautionary measure.

Our advice to consumers

If you have bought any of the above products, do not eat it. Instead, return it to the store from where it was bought for a full refund.

Action taken by the company

Macsween of Edinburgh Ltd is recalling the above products including products produced for Lidl and Marks & Spencer. Point of sale notices will be displayed in all retail stores that are selling these products. These notices explain to customers why the products are being recalled and tell them what to do if they have bought the product. Please see the attached notices.
